be "all-new" or "substantially changed."

Early in December, jurors sent their ballots to Deloitte & Touche. The accounting firm kept the finalists secret until the Dec. 10 announcement at the Automotive Press Association luncheon in Detroit.

Diane DeFrancis, a partner at Deloitte, handed two sealed envelopes over to Joann Muller, one of the judges and the Detroit Bureau Chief of Forbes Media, who made the announcements.

According to the public statement issued after the announcement, there will be a second round of voting on the three car and three truck/utility finalists.

Those ballots also go to Deloitte officials, who will keep the winners secret until a news conference on Monday, Jan. 13, at the North American International Auto Show.

The list of eligible vehicles originally included 28 cars and 18 truck/utilities. In September, the jurors voted to focus on 12 cars and 12 truck/utilities.

- Chevrolet Impala;
- Infiniti Q50;
- Jaguar F-Type;

2015 'Vette to Debut at NAIAS

The 2014 North American International Auto Show press preview is on Monday, Jan. 13, and Tuesday, Jan. 14.

According to information released by GM, the automaker will introduce the 2015 Corvette Z06 at the show.

It will be the most track-capable Corvette ever, designed to deliver supercar levels of performance through unique powertrain, chassis and aerodynamic features, said GM spokesman Monte Doran.

The introduction of the Corvette Z06 will complete Chevrolet's performance car lineup, which will also see the addition of the Corvette Stingray Convertible, Camaro Z/28 and SS sedan, Doran said.

"Chevrolet is America's favorite performance car brand, and for 2014 we are going to offer enthusiasts more choices than ever before," said Alan Batey, senior vice president, Global Chevrolet.

"No other manufacturer will be able to match the breadth of performance cars from Chevrolet."
